Regional Events Conference Coming in 2016

Regional event professionals from across the state will converge on Wagga Wagga, NSW in May for the first Regional Events Conference.

The NSW Regional Events Conference (NSWREC) is the first conference of its kind in NSW. Event professionals and event stakeholders will have the opportunity to get together and hear from targeted and experienced presenters discussing issues and topics that directly affect the regional event industry.

A quality program blended with good networking activities, thought provoking/constructive discussions and smashing social activities is the NSWREC recipe and will appeal to those that are hungry for knowledge and strong industry contacts.

NSWREC will target community event organisers, event management businesses/contractors, Local Governments, Regional Tourism Organisations, Local tourism organisations, students and anyone with an interest in the regional events field.

Wagga Wagga based event management business; King Events is organising the event, “Following years of frustration at not having regional-specific professional development opportunities, we decided to do something about it, said Belinda King, Owner of King Events.

“Wagga Wagga City Council has been very supportive and are partnering with us to ensure delegates are shown a great time while in the City.”

The conference will showcase regional events from across Australia and also focus on volunteers, grants and funding, sponsorship, securing major events, financing for regional events and plenty more.

Call for Papers are now being received for presenters for the conference.
